

More Midvale News:

- Feeling squeezed
- Riding rising stars
- Mid Valley: Making the rounds
- Pet of the week
- Mid Valley: School daze
- Volunteer corner
- Things to do this week and beyond
- In our town
- For love of the game
- Ace behind the race
- Climbers fight cancer
- Mid Valley: A bountiful carnival
- Volunteer corner
- Pet of the week
- Mid Valley: School daze
- Things to do this week and beyond
- In our town
- Park displays ways to conserve water
- Testing the limits
- Trio serves up paint job at club
- Center provides writing coaches for regular folks
- Mid Valley: Getting careers rolling
- Pet of the week
- Mid Valley: School daze
- Things to do this week and beyond
- In our town
- Volunteer corner
- Dog park feud boils
- Keeping traditions, festivity evolves in fun
- Their love, business blossomed
- Mid Valley: Big hearts lead the way
- Volunteer corner
- Pet of the week
- Mid Valley: School daze
- Things to do this week and beyond
- In our town

del.icio.us
Digg
Reddit
YahooMyWeb
Google
What's this?
Print
Email

Bikes for Kids braves elements

By Pace Gardner
Special to the Tribune

Article Last Updated: 10/11/2007 04:41:28 PM MDT

How do you get a thousand kids, their parents and a Bear mascot to stand for hours in the freezing rain? Simple. Just give away a bunch of free bikes.

That was the formula last Saturday at the Intermountain Medical Center parking lot in Murray.

For the second year in a row, Bikes for Kids Utah accomplished its goal of giving away 1,000 free bikes to underprivileged second-graders from across the state. The event was a big draw - despite weather that deserved an ark.

Following the advice of the administrators of Bikes for Kids, most of the parents of the lucky recipients hadn't informed their children of the free bikes until they were en route to the giveaway. "I guess they didn't want them to get too excited," said parent Chad Lamb of West Jordan.

The children weren't exactly calm after they arrived at the event and grasped the nature of their upcoming windfall.

"It feels like Christmas morning!" yelled one nameless and vocal member of the child mob as she sprinted toward a semi trailer filled with boxes of unassembled blue Huffys.

The gravity of the situation also wasn't lost on Tour de France stage winner and spokesman for the event, Dave Zabriskie. His participation in an auction and a sponsored bike ride helped fund the giveaway.

"The kids seem pretty happy, except for the rain," said Zabriskie.

Besides feeling like Santa Claus, Zabriskie has several reasons for his continued involvement with Bikes for Kids.

"The number one factor was that [Bikes for Kids] was a local charity. It's nice to help kids fight obesity and being a bike rider sticks with you. But don't get me wrong, I like video games as much as the next guy, but it's nice to mix it up once and a while," said Zabriskie.

In addition to receiving bikes, each of the children received a helmet, a bike lock and the opportunity to cruise the highly unpopular bike rodeo on a preassembled bike. The Bike Rodeo was a cone-directed obstacle course made bleak by the driving sheets of icy rain.

The purpose of the bike rodeo was to give the children a chance to feel out a preassembled bike before being awarded one of their own. For many of the second-graders, their prize from Bikes for Kids was their first bike, as was the case for 7-year-old Esther Torres.

"I'm not excited, I'm very excited," said Torres as she waited patiently with Grizzbee, the Utah Grizzlies mascot, for her turn to receive a bike.

With increased participation and donations, Dave Zabriskie and the Bikes for Kids organizers are looking forward to the future of their program. And if the growth of the charity continues at its current speed, soon many more bikes will be given to many more deserving recipients.

"I'd like to smash all the cars, encourage riding, be able to give bikes to old people too and take biking as far as it can go," said Zabriskie.

Regardless of its increased level of growth, Bikes for Kids seemed determined to incorporate at least one significant change to the program.

"Next year, I think we're going to do this giveaway in summer," said drenched public relations director David Politis.

Click photo to enlarge

Dave Zabriskie, current USA time trial champion and Tour de France stage winner, was the guest of...

To Advertise Online

- Button Ads
- Banner Ads
- Tower Ads

and more!

Switch to Nationwide®
Auto Insurance.

Save up to $523.

Learn more »

 Nationwide®
On Your Side

Advertisement